

FOREWORD

THE aim of this little book is to give in a clear, concise and condensed form the facts about K Company from the time it was organized to the time it was demobilized. There has been no attempt whatever to picture in flowery terms the hardships and accomplishments, but to give them in a good, readable form. The information herein has been compiled with an effort to have recorded facts that in years to come will be of priceless value. And as it is sent out to you, along with it goes hearty good wishes for your future success.

Once comrades in service in defense of our country in its hour of need; fought together on foreign soil, and now separated and reverted to a civilian status to be comrades in service in the various interests of our country's welfare. May our country's future and interest to humanity be uppermost in our minds and actions, and that the associations formed and friendships made be forever a lasting memory.

Sincerely yours,

JOHN H. WORKMAN.

Cherryville, N. C.,
July 25, 1919.